

The background is a dark, textured surface, possibly a wall or a piece of fabric, with a prominent red diagonal stripe running from the top left towards the center. There are faint, stylized letters and shapes in the background, including a large 'O' and 'T' in red and white, and some other indistinct markings. The overall mood is gritty and somber.

Lessons to live a life by...

"This is a book that breaks my heart and then makes it bigger. I am changed by it and grateful.."

-Chrisann Brennan, author of The Bite In The Apple

"Know this, please. Every one of us has a story. Kevin's life is a heart-filled basket full of them. Wherever his attention wanders, follow it. Down that path waits insight and inspiration, humor and hope, for all of us"

-Eldon Hughes, www.ifoundaknife.com

"People who survive, and thrive, through the challenges of a harsh upbringing often become determined, compassionate, and empathetic, and wonderful story tellers. Kevin Honeycutt is the epitome of all of this, and through this book, we will all learn extraordinary life lessons that we must share with others in our life."

-Angela Maiers, author of The Passion Driven Classroom

As you dive into this book please note that these are simple stories written with my voice and transposed by a talented, brilliant and funny woman named Terri. None of this would be possible without her. Additionally I'll tell you that if you're expecting a novel or anything recognizable as a regular book you're apt to be confused. It's best to just relax, sit back and let this happen to you. Thanks for taking a little time to see and hopefully learn from my journey.

Thanks to my Mom. My quest to make you proud resulted in all of the successes that I've had. Thank you for being you and for protecting this creative, sensitive kid from so many bad things.

Thanks to my son Benjamin for inspiring me daily. Your writing and drive to write have made me want to do the same.

Thanks to my friend Terri. Your wit, wisdom and creativity have made this book possible.

Thanks to my beautiful wife Michele. Everything I am or will be was purchased by your love.

Thanks to my new little boy Gibson. Your arrival has made me young again. The future I see in your eyes drives me to be there to see as much of it as possible.
